

September 22, 2025

Lee Zeldin, Administrator U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
William J. Clinton Building
1200 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 2046

Comments on the proposed rule “Reconsideration of 2009 Endangerment Finding and Greenhouse Gas Vehicle Standards” (Docket ID No EPA-HQ-OAR-2025-0194)

Administrator Zeldin:

The Environmental Protection Agency has a responsibility to protect human health. This responsibility includes protecting health from the ever-growing and intensifying impacts of climate change. Communities across every corner of the country have experienced far too many harmful impacts of climate change. Frequent and intense wildfires, storms and deadly flooding, record-breaking heat, greater risk of some diseases and worsening allergy seasons are just some of the ways climate change impacts health.

Climate change is also making air quality worse, so that communities are at risk not only from the immediate health harms stemming from wildfire or a flood, but are also left breathing dirtier air.

Science is very clear – greenhouse gas emissions are accelerating climate change. The Endangerment Finding has been a cornerstone of public health law for more than 15 years. Ignoring scientific and health experts and the lived experiences of millions of people across the country does not change the fact that greenhouse gases endanger health.

The transportation sector is the largest source of greenhouse gas emissions. Motor vehicles are also leading sources of cancer-causing air pollution, which can be especially dangerous for children, the elderly and those living with lung disease. Dismantling essential standards to clean up vehicle pollution will lead to more sickness, higher healthcare costs and premature death.

If finalized, this proposal to repeal the Endangerment Finding and greenhouse gas standards on cars and trucks would endanger my health and the health of my family and community. I urge you to abandon this attempt to ignore science and instead to honor EPA’s mission – to protect human health and the environment.

Sincerely,

Alaska
